WETTEST MONTH

For almost 60 years, Minden resident Phill Graham has been keeping track of the weather for Environment Canada. This past August was the wettest month he's ever recorded in all those years. A record monthly rainfall of 6.4 inches or 16.25 centimetres of rain turned the skies gray and the forests green. The average temperature for the month was 24.6°C or 76.3°F.

West Nile infects horse

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

A Minden Hills horse has been euthanized after contracting the West Nile virus, making it the first confirmed victim of the disease in Haliburton County.

Dr. Joan Grant, one of the county's two large-animal veterinarians, put the horse down in mid-August.

"I got an emergency call to go and see a little miniature horse," Grant said, explaining the call had come in the second week of August. For reasons of confidentiality, Grant could not identify the horse's owners.

"It had obvious neurological symptoms," she continued. "It couldn't get up at all."

Based on these symptoms, Grant was able to rule out certain diseases and said she concluded that the horse was likely suffering from either equine encephalitis, which is also transmitted to horses by mosquitoes, or the West Nile virus.

Former Hyland Crest resident leaves bequest

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

One of Hyland Crest's former residents has left Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation a generous gift.

Reg Argyle left a bequest of more than $40,000 to the foundation when he died in January of 2008 in his 99th year and has been recognized by the foundation as one of its "Donors of Distinction."

"He was an amazing gentleman," says Brendan Berube, the executor of Argyle's estate. He and Argyle, who had no children, had become close friends over the years through their involvement with Minden's amateur radio club.

Reg Argyle was a mentor and 'irrepressible guy'

Describing Argyle as a "buoyant spirit," Berube said his friend's mind was still sharp as a proverbial tack when he passed away peacefully in his sleep.

"He could regale you with tale after tale after tale of his life," he said.

Born in 1909 in Berkshire, England, Argyle spent most of his adult life living and working a number of jobs in Toronto and moved with his wife south of Minden to Lutterworth Pines in the 1980s.

To his fellow ham radio enthusiasts, Argyle was a mentor and a teacher.

"He helped us to learn on the ins and outs of ham radio," he said.

Berube recalled being at one event where there was damage to an antenna tower and Argyle, then in his 80s, climbing the 40-foot apparatus to fix the problem.

This, Berube said, spoke volumes about Argyle's character.

"He was pretty much an irrepressible guy."

Argyle moved into Hyland Crest in the spring of 2006.

"He was the only 97-year-old resident of Hyland Crest who could check out and get in his car and drive to Lindsay for lunch," Berube said, adding that this was something Argyle did quite often and that he was always ready to offer police officers who might give him a hard time a Lifesaver from the roll he kept in his pocket.

Berube said the reason he thought Argyle chose HHHSF as his beneficiary was because of the medical care his wife had received years earlier.

"It's wonderful when people keep the health care facilities and the hospitals in their minds," said foundation executive director Dale Walker. "Future generations can benefit from it."

Argyle's donation will be used to help pay for stationary ceiling lifts that were installed at HHHS facilities in Minden and Haliburton earlier this year at a cost of more than $360,000.

Argyle was buried beside his wife Dolly at the Minden cemetery.

Johnson gets a promotion, federal Liberals choose candidate

Rick Johnson, MPP for Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock, has been given new roles and responsibilities as parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, Premier Dalton McGuinty announced Friday.

"This just fell out of the sky," Johnson said while in Fenelon Falls for an event at the Kawartha North Family Health Team. He learned of his appointment on his BlackBerry a few minutes earlier.

"With our riding, this is a perfect fit," he added.

Parliamentary assistants work with ministers on key priorities and projects within their portfolios.

Johnson will work with Agriculture Minister Leona Dombrowsky. He said he gets along very well with her and looked forward to his new responsibilities.

Meanwhile, Bobcaygeon municipal councillor Pat Warren is poised to be the Liberal candidate in the next federal election, whenever that will be.

The nomination meeting is Thursday, September 17 at the Olympia Restaurant in Lindsay. There is no other candidate running for the nomination.

Family of former fair ambassador promotes program

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The Haliburton County Fair has come and gone for another year, and for another year, it was without a fair ambassador.

This is something fair organizer Mary Minto and Gary Kasepchuk would like to change.

While a fair ambassador used to be a regular fixture at the annual event, it has been a decade since an ambassador was crowned at the fair due to a lack of interest.

Kasepchuk believes the reinvigoration of an ambassadorship at the county's fair would do much to serve the area's young people.

"All you have to do is look around the county.... Role models are few and far between," he said.

Kasepchuk's daughter Teresa was the fair's last ambassador back in 1999 and Kasepchuk couldn't say enough about what the experience had done for her.

"It gave her a view of what she wanted to become," he said, explaining that Teresa had travelled to a number of other fairs, including the CNE in Toronto. "She'd come home and tell of the experiences she's had. I watched her just grow."

Teresa went on to study film at the post-secondary level and got a job as post-production supervisor in the film industry.

"She achieved her goals," Kasepchuk said, stressing that he felt her time as a fair ambassador had been central in building that confidence that had allowed his daughter to follow her dreams.

Teresa was killed in a car crash in March of 2008 at the age of 26.

"For years we did have an ambassador," Minto said. "We just can't get the interest."

Minto was unsure whether it was the popularity of the nearby Kinmount Fair, or simply a general turning away from rural traditions by the younger generation that is accounting for the lack of interest in fair ambassadorship.

She said she has approached local schools, and wishes they would do more to support the program.

"A community's lifeblood is through the fair," Kasepchuk said. If one student benefits the way Teresa did, this community is going to benefit 10 times over."

Kasepchuk hopes to help the fair rebuild its ambassadorship program and believes the way to do this is by making it more of a competition by providing a bursary or scholarship for potential ambassadors.

Kasepchuk is willing to donate the $100 towards the endeavour and is hoping other individuals or businesses in county will do the same.

Anyone interested should contact the Haliburton County fair board.

Tourism marketing could be at the touch of a screen

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

Haliburton County may be soon be advertising itself with some advanced 21st century technology.

At an economic development committee meeting on September 9, county councillors and staff members heard from Keith Riley of the company Digital Footprints, based near Bancroft.

Riley would like the county to consider using his company's interactive digital screens at its tourist information station and other frequently visited destinations in the county.

Running 24 hours a day, the 40-square-inch touch-screens provide a round-the-clock tourist information as well as access to the websites of companies that advertise on the screens.

Bancroft is currently using Riley's screens and Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls are also getting on board.

All of these community's screens would also be available through screens in Haliburton.

The price Riley was asking for his technology seemed appealing to councillors.

"I can provide this technology free of charge," Riley said, if the county is willing to help him find 30 advertisers.

Advertisers would be asked to pay $365 a year to have their logo and website appear on the screen.

With 60 advertisers, Riley said he could provide two large screens and two smaller ones that could be placed in areas such as grocery stores.

The county's other option would be to purchase the screens for $10,000 a piece and manage them itself, an idea which seemed appealing to no one on the committee.

Riley said a major benefit of his system is that tourists can get important information after business and said from his office he can make instant changes to any of the advertisers' ads.

"The system is so flexible," he said. "The interactive technology is just mind-blowing in what you can do with it."

The screens can be operated from behind glass barriers using a wired, miler coating affixed to the exterior of the window, to decrease instances of vandalism.

"If it's a county thing, I just want to make sure it's county-wide," said Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey, indicating that just because the county's tourist information centre is located in Minden Hills, it doesn't mean the county's other townships should lose out.

Fearrey said he's like to see a screen in Haliburton Village as well.

"There are a lot of things that Keith and I still have to go over," said county economic development director Bob Smith, indicating he would be in negotiations with Riley about specifics.

County council will still have to approve the project.

September 12 marked the 88th birthday of late R.D. Lawrence and the Great Green Garage Sale was a fitting way to honour him. It raised $5,000 to help protect his work for the RDL Place archive project.

Pritchard photos illustrate Minden's past

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The Minden Hills Museum expanded its collection last week following the donation of photographs and artifacts from one of the village's historically prominent families.

Tim Pritchard, grandson of former Minden reeve Lawrence Pritchard and son of former deputy-reeve Douglas Pritchard, visited staff at the museum on September 11, bringing with him a large collection of photographs.

Covering a period from the early 1900s to the 1970s, the photos are not of just Pritchard's family, but also reveal Minden's evolution over the years, including events such as the reconstruction of the bridge on Bobcaygeon Road and a downtown fire in 1942.

"I decided this was a better place for them," Pritchard said last week, seated at a table inside the museum's Bowron House.

Pritchard, who was born and raised in Minden, left the area in 1983 and now resides in London, Ontario. He said the photos have been in his possession since his father died in 1998 and have been sitting in a box in his home.

Along with the pictures, Pritchard donated other items, including editions of the Minden Progress from the 1960s and the journals his grandfather and father had kept while at war.

Lawrence fought in the First World War and Douglas in the Second World War.

Museum curator Carol Simmons said she was delighted to add the items to the museum's collection and said the Pritchard war journals would be on display during a Remembrance Day exhibit this November.

Since his two sisters have also moved out the area, Pritchard said he doesn't make it to Minden much anymore. During his visit last week, he took his son, Austin, to see the house where he grew up.

Pritchard House, the stone house on the corner of Milne and Water Streets, is now owned by the Township of Minden Hills.

"I took [Austin] around the property and showed him where my bedroom window used to be," Pritchard said.

The building currently sits unused. While it was once used by spinners and weavers of the area, changes to the building to enhance its accessibility and bring it up to code would be expensive for the township.

There had been talk of selling the building or demolishing it to make room for more downtown parking, a group of citizens formed the Pritchard House Preservation Society in protest of such plans.

While he said he wouldn't consider his childhood home a heritage house, Pritchard said he would like to see it maintained by the municipality and used for "any activity that is productive and contributes to life in Minden."

"Sitting there, derelict and old doesn't do anything for the downtown core," he said.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

In praise of bus drivers

THEY ARE SOME of the most trusted members of society.
Their job is crucial to the Western world.
And yet, their service often goes overlooked.

They are bus drivers.

Archie Stouffer Elementary School held an appreciation breakfast for its bus drivers earlier this week, an annual tradition that is a pat on the back to those who could be considered the unsung heroes of the education system.

Think about it.

We trust educators to shape the minds of our children, but we trust bus drivers with their very lives.

Not really a small responsibility.

And the job itself is a rather important one, an integral part of our societal system.

Bus drivers transport students to school where their minds are filled with wonderful things and those students go on to become dentists and engineers and nurses and businesspeople.

In this way, bus drivers help turn the very wheel of society.

There is also the day-to-day reality of the job to consider, which, from this comfy spinning chair, doesn't seem all that pleasant.

It's fair to say that most bus drivers are up fairly early to allow time for coffee and food before they set out on their routes.

Then, of course, there's the size of the vehicles themselves; we're talking about automobiles that are 12 metres long here.

Presumably they can be a little awkward to manoeuvre.

There's also the matter of their precious cargo, which, while precious, can be loud, obnoxious, disrespectful and distracting.

Anyone who ever had the immense pleasure of taking the bus to school will recall that children seldom follow the rules of bus etiquette they are supposed to and so instead of no standing, no yelling and no eating, what actually happens is all three.

It's probably pretty distracting.

On top of putting up with student shenanigans, bus drivers can always look forward to their whopping paycheques.

Not to be a jerk or criticize the school board, but let's be honest, these men and women are not breaking the bank.

All this so that someone else's children can get to school safely.

Seems like a rather selfless occupation, really.

Hail to the bus driver.

Learning curb

To the Editor:

In response to "Riding the White Tightrope" by Neil Campbell, September 2 Minden Times, I'd like to touch very briefly on cycling as being "a mode of transportation [that] is almost theological."

I don't think reductionist pigeon-holing is the way to solve this problem. Certainly riding a bike cuts down on my carbon footprint, but it is also my sole form of transport. I too get quite nervous about sharing the road sometimes. Mostly it is when an approaching car does something unpredictable such as honking when right behind me or veering across the double yellow to give me the widest birth possible.

It would be wonderful if there were bike lanes along side every road, but there are not. Not even a shoulder in a lot of cases. Possibly with the launch of "Share the Road" campaign more attention will be paid to this issue. As stated in "Riding," it can become an issue of life and death.

I certainly cannot speak for every cyclist, but I always assume a car is behind me and in my blind spot. I try to be predictable. It sure would be a lot safer for me if every driver expected to be sharing the road with cyclists, and hopefully, the signage put up through the campaign will help generate more mutual respect, communication and awareness between cyclists and cars.

I'm just thinking that those of us that close up the cottage for the winter should take a second look at the canned goods and packages before hauling them home again. Carol Boyd
Horseshoe Lake

Clap for the wolfman

I'M CERTAINLY NOT on the cutting edge of social trends but you don't have to be to see that, lately, television, movies and even literature are heavily invested in vampire story lines.

Am I the only one who is more than a little disappointed with the popularity of all this nonsense? Honestly, these plots are stupid, predictable and based on old peasant folklore as well as ridiculous, bizarre superstitions. Enough with the crosses, mirrors, crypts and bats. The general public, in my mind at least, is a lot smarter and more sophisticated than that. It's time to move on.

Perhaps I'm being a bit elitist, but I would rather be subjected to stories that are slightly more intelligent and believable – essentially, anything with werewolves in it.

I think we can all agree that werewolves are the thinking person's monster. For one thing, they have a more sophisticated palate – they like lamb, pork, and prime rib. And they just don't go around drinking blood from person to person without protection like most vampires do. No ma'am, werewolves are a little more responsible than that.

The best part is that we really haven't explored the werewolf psyche very well yet. Forget all this teenaged werewolf stuff; let's dig deeper and examine the complex life of a 40-something werewolf going through a mid-life crisis. Let's explore how he deals with a receding hairline, a deer belly, and the fact that his son has decided to quit school, wear dreadlocks, and run off with a sheepdog. Let's have Caesar Milan do a cameo appearance and help solve some of the pack's major issues.

There are so many places to go with this. Why not an episode where they spend most of their time picking burrs out of each other's coats and reminiscing about why they failed as sheep farmers? Or how about a scene showing the grandpups scoot across carpet or play fetch in the house? Reveal to me how they react around fire hydrants.

BEYOND35

Let's add some depth to our entertainment.

The point is anything is more believable and endearing than vampires. Even the good vampires on television bug me.

For one thing, they're so conflicted about whether they drink human or animal blood. Every time they get hungry it's a moral issue. And they're constantly having flashbacks of when they were 17th century peasants. Get over the drama already! You're undead!

And can anyone tell me why they just don't bite each other and recycle? Or whether or not they get cavities from dining on too many diabetics? I'd also like to know if they have some sort of dental version of Viagra? Otherwise, how is it possible for teeth to grow into fangs that quickly? Furthermore, why can't they just slather on a heavy sun block and enjoy the daylight hours?

See what I mean? The mythology is just so unbelievable.

Werewolves are completely different, however. I think we can all see that.

I guess all I'm saying here is that we, as an audience, deserve something so much better than what we are getting. We need something to howl about.

Rumours of bears

IF THEY REALLY are running out of bears in British Columbia, they could always send to Haliburton County for a refill.

Just park an 18-wheeler at the Scotch Line dump some September evening after closing time, open the trailer doors and toss in a few bags of Timmy's day-olds.

After an hour or so, you should have a truckload of bears ready for the long ride west. There might be as many as 35 of them ready to come on board, or so rumour has it.

Rumour is about all we've got, because mum's the word for the folks who work in our dumps. As in a hockey dressing-room, what you see here and hear here is supposed to stay here.

Oh, and sorry for calling our landfills dumps, but they'll always be dumps to me. Except for the transfer stations, which are neither one nor 'tother but still look like dinner to a bear.

There must be some official spokesperson available to be interviewed about bears and dumps in Haliburton but spokespeople always leave out all the good stuff.

So I am reduced to supermarket scuttlebutt and begging for gossip from a worker who might let slip a story from somebody else's dump, all the while looking over one shoulder for prowling bears and bureaucrats.

A female dump attendant in Highlands East lets a bear get so close that it steps on her foot. At another dump, a bear as friendly as a black Lab puppy, has to be pushed out of the way so the gate can be opened each morning.

Bears (and raccoons) climb into dumpsters and sometimes get in so deep they need part of a small tree trunk propped in one corner of the container to climb back out. Sounds pretty high tech to me!

BACK OF BEYOND

Neil Campbell

A dump worker leans over the top of a container to see what is making so much noise and comes nose-to-nose with a big black bear hauling itself back out. The human steps back in a hurry and the bear keeps coming. Or so the story goes.

The evident starvation of the B.C. bear population by the collapse of the West Coast salmon runs is no laughing matter. Neither is the terror of Stanhope householders who find bears rummaging through their refrigerators.

The theory is that Stanhope's home invasions are short-term pain for long-term gain. Ring the dumps with electric fence and, after a house call or two, the bears will go back to living off the land.

Trouble is, a bear can dig under a fence or come through the same open gate as the garbage that will be its breakfast. Once inside, a bear chowing down with both front paws is in no hurry to leave.

Still, the electric fences must be having some effect or there would not be so many Stanhope home invasions.

Or perhaps bears see us so often at the dump that they start to think they know us well enough to drop by the house unannounced for a visit.

So now the dumps have rules about sightseeing. No garbage and you don't get through the gate. Fling your bags in a hurry and don't even look. No peeking.

Except by the bear. There he stands on top of a heap, looking like a postcard, looking at me not looking at him.

It hardly seems fair.

Horses can be vaccinated

Grant treated the horse with vaccines for both diseases, but when she returned a few days later, said the horse was still unable to move.

The decision was then made to put the animal out of its misery.

Because of the nature of the horse's illness, its brain was removed and sent to federally-run lab in Peterborough for testing.

A couple of weeks later, the results revealed that the three-and-half-year-old horse had contracted the West Nile virus.

"It's the first confirmed case in Haliburton County," said Grant, who has been working in the area for 20 years.

And the horse had to have contracted the disease here.

"He was born and raised in Haliburton County his whole life," she said, explaining that the horse had been born on a farm just down the river from the one where it had lived the rest of its life.

The horse had never received any vaccinations, Grant said, ruling out the possibility that it had somehow contracted the disease through a needle.

She said following the lab results, the lab sent workers to collect mosquito samples from near the Gull River.

"Humans should be aware," Grant said, encouraging people to make sure their skin is covered when in buggy areas and to keep their properties clear of stagnant water sources.

While there are West Nile vaccinations available for horses and donkeys, there is no human vaccine. Grant said this is likely due to political and financial reasons, since the number of humans who have died from the virus is so few.

Many animals and humans who contract the disease are able to beat it.

Grant said miniature horses often live longer than regular horses, with lifespans of more than 30 years.

Dogs and cats cannot contract the West Nile virus.

In Season, Every Season

There's something good in every one of these cans.

Every aluminum and steel can that gets recycled is put to good use. Empty aluminum beverage cans are turned into brand new cans - often back on store shelves within 60 days. Steel cans are turned back into food containers, too, but they can also become parts of automobiles, bridges or even new houses.

Aluminum and steel cans can be recycled over and over, infinitely.

Making new products from recycled material uses much less energy than making them from raw materials. And the more cans you recycle, the more money your municipality raises to finance its recycling program.

We're half way there.

Right now, about 50% of all cans in Ontario get recycled. The ones that don't are wasted, ending in landfill sites rather than being put to valuable use. Let's all put more into our Blue Box, and get more out of it.

Can we put more aluminum and steel cans into the Blue Box? Can we divert needless waste from landfill sites? Can we save more energy? Can we put every empty can to good use?

The answer is simple. Yes, we can.

Space provided through a partnership between industry and Ontario municipalities to support waste diversion programs.

New sleds bring safety and reliability

by MATT JAMES
Times Staff

While $20 doesn't go very far these days, the Ski Friends of the Frost Centre discovered that $26,800 does.

This past March the Ski Friends committee received news that they'd been awarded a significant grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation. With the money the club has purchased two powerful Yamaha snowmobiles, equipped with racks for hauling the grooming equipment.

Because more than half of the Frost Centre ski trails are in Muskoka, Parry Sound-Muskoka MPP Norm Miller joined Teri Souter, a volunteer representing the Ontario Trillium Foundation, and Ski Friends on Saturday to make a formal presentation of the grant money.

"I'm very, very pleased today that this application was successful," said Souter. "We look at all the things we're trying to accomplish with these funds [and] active living for Ontarians is right atop that list and certainly the Frost Centre and the ski trails are a huge part of that."

Last year, while the foundation's budget was a substantial $120 million, there are many organizations wanting the funds and the applications go through a very stringent process before being doled out, Souter said.

Ski Friends chairman Wally Ozog is most pleased that the trails will now have reliable equipment:

"This past winter we were reduced to one snowmobile," said Ozog, who said that one of the sleds had broken down and replacement parts could not be found. "Fortunately, the surviving [sled] was able to make it through winter thanks to [trail groomer] Bruce Davidson's TLC."

For safety reasons Ozog said that the club would like to have two snowmobiles and, thanks the efforts of Norm Vanstone for the countless hours and work he put in to the application process, that has been made possible.

Ozog also thanked the volunteers and supports of the Ski Friends.

"You cannot not place a dollar value on their dedication and their hard labour," he said.

The Haliburton County Development Corporation has also given financial assistance, in excess of $10,000, over the past few years. This money enables the Ski Friends to buy the material necessary for bridges, shelters and culverts and pay for backhoe work.

Since 1997 the volunteer-based Ski Friends have operated and maintained the trails surrounded the Frost Centre Institute. The trails are on the province's land but the Ministry of Natural Resources no longer pays for the work. The Ski Friends rely on ski pass revenue and donations to operate and pay for grooming.

Thanks to a $26,800 grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation the Ski Friends of the Frost Centre were able to purchase two much needed snowmobiles to maintain their trails. From left to right is Margaret Brogden (SFFC memberships), SFFC chair Wally Ozog, Ted Koehler, Sigi von Hunnis (SFFC committee member), MPP Muskoka-Parry Sound Norm Miller, Teri Souter (volunteer rep Ontario Trillium Foundation) and Norm Vanstone (SFFC treasurer).

The 2009 recipient of the Kinmount and District Lions Club citizen of the year award is the absolute "country gentleman." Ralph Pearson, a resident on the Galway Road, has been a long-standing member of the fair board, active in the life and work of St. Patrick's Church and involved in so many aspects of our community's life.

Recently Ralph and his majestic team Barney and Ben transported the judges for the Communities in Bloom competition between viewing sites in true rural style. He was telling us that Ben is just three years old and already showing great promise in his new role.

It wasn't just the young gentle giant Ben who benefitted from such a good teacher. Back in 1969, when Bruce and I first bought the old farmstead (a "City Dweller's Dream" according to the Globe and Mail classifieds), and during the early years that followed, it was often Ralph's sage advice that saved us. Over the telephone he would patiently listen to my rush of anxious questions then pause to assess the situation before calmly providing reassuring direction. Thank you Ralph not only for all your gifts to the residents of Kinmount and neighbouring areas but also for your kindness to this family of willing but woefully naïve weekenders. Your recognition by the Lions Club is richly deserved.

Congratulations to the winners of the Kinmount and Area Artisans Guild's 10th

Minden Terry Fox run hits $150k goal

Sunday's Terry Fox Run in Minden brought in more than $7,500 with 122 participants cycling, walking and jogging their way down Deep Bay Road raising money for cancer research.

The 16th annual event met and surpassed its overall $150,000 goal this year to mark Minden's 150th birthday. Organizers had hoped to have 150 participants as well, but fell just shy of that target.

Participants were rewarded for their hard work with cool drinks, barbecue lunch and prizes.

Cyclists started the event, followed by joggers, walkers and a few pups, too.

STANHOPE LIFE

Gina Atkinson

pinereflections@sympatico.ca

We live in one of the most beautiful places in the world. Unfortunately for me there are too many limitations to enjoying the great outdoors.

Let's see... in order of importance, there's my phobia of spiders, not being able to swim, outhouses, and my big love of comfy clothes and comfy couch at night.

That is why I am totally impressed with my friend Sharon Martella. Sharon, her daughter Judi Thomas and their group went into Algonquin Park last weekend and enjoyed the total experience. I was invited but I reviewed the above points and decided I would have been a hindrance to their expedition. Also, what I would deem emergency wouldn't qualify for immediate rescue.

So the following is a recap of some of Sharon's experience in her own words. The only part she left out was about the squirrel throwing acorns at the tent they were in. Apparently he was annoyed that they had hung their supplies beyond his/her reach. Makes for a good story.

"My daughter, Judi Thomas, and I headed out on September 3 for a five-day canoe trip in Algonquin. Our starting point was the northern end of Smoke Lake down through Ragged Lake where Judi and I made our first camp. Incredible campsite set high on the rocks with a majestic view in all directions. Sun diamonds performed a fire dance across the deep, still, clear waters reflecting every tree and billowing white clouds in the blue sky.

"At night a full moon shone through the screened roof of our tent and mirrored itself in the water sparkling like precious gems. Creation at its finest moments.

"On the second day our friends joined us and we paddled on through Big Porcupine, Bonnechere, Pardee and into Harness Lake where we made camp for two nights. Again, we managed to get an incredibly large campsite with majestic views, high rocks for diving into crystal clear cool waters. I think this must be paradise.

"We took a rest day here and spent most of it in the water. We saw a small rock island some distance from our campsite where we spent the afternoon relaxing. Judi, Jordan (Erich's nine-year-old daughter) and I decided we would swim back to our camp site, while the others canoed close by us. Another challenge for me, I hadn't done anything like this for over 45 years. Incredible!!!!

A canoe trip through Algonquin Park can mean a lot of portaging, but that doesn't seem to be a problem for Judi Thomas, who easily balanced this canoe on her shoulders.

"Challenging portages up and down hills, over rocks and across bogs with a full canoe pack, paddles and life jackets strapped on is no easy task for someone who has 'dead' feet, but I was on a mission and could not be stopped – the rewards far outweighed the challenges!

"We spent our final night on Head Lake and then started the long river trip on the Madawaska, full of beaver dams, a seemingly never-ending maze which eventually opened up into the Lake of Two Rivers, and the Kilarney picnic grounds where my son-in-law, Ben was waiting with his ever ready smile to bring us home. My adventure didn't end there, but that is another story. Another dream has been realized."

Sharon is certainly a free spirit from the past! What's next – rock climbing? Ski diving?

I am going to pass on a tip that a friend of mine gave me on how to prevent flies from entering the house.

Fill a zip-lock bag half-way with water and five or six pennies and hang it over a problem door or window. For some reason flies and even wasps are threatened by this and don't enter.

There are a couple of theories on why this works but the most logical is that there are millions of molecules of water that create a prism effect thereby giving the pests a fear of becoming lunch or dinner.

Let me know if it works for you.

This Saturday our area will be host to the Kawartha Lakes Region of the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada. They will be in area for a fall foliage tour and poker run! The group will leave Baddow Community Centre at about 10 a.m. and follow Highway 35 and Deep Bay Road to the Minden Hills Museum. From Minden the group will proceed to the Stanhope Museum arriving around 12:15 p.m. There they will spend a little time viewing the museum's collection with curator Bill's informative narrative and then head down to Pine Reflections and the Mill Pond Restaurant in Carnarvon.

In the afternoon they will make their way back farther north to the Hawk Lake Log Chute.

At all their stops they will be dealt a card to add to their potential winning poker hand.

The group extends their thanks to their hosts for their special day: Carol, Emma, Bill, Brad and Anne Archer and Nigel and I. Commendations also go to Bob Graham of the car club for a day spent enjoying local history in Haliburton and old Victoria County.

Welcome and let's hope the sun shines for them!

Sharon Martella certainly had her load to bear on the portage routes too. She says the rewards far outweighed the challenges.

Jack Van Dorp wins Logs, Rocks and Steel race

by BILL WALKER
Sun Media

Jack Van Dorp's labours on the Labour Day weekend earned the Wiarton native a spot in the world multi-sport championships.

The 25-year-old Bruce County planner captured the Guats Logs, Rocks, & Steel multi-sport adventure race in the Haliburton Highlands.

The win came with an automatic berth in the 2010 World Multi-Sport Championships in New Zealand this February.

"I sensed that this type of race was pretty much right up my alley based on my training patterns and racing history," Van Dorp told the Owen Sound Sun Times.

"It was just an unfamiliar combination. I thought I'd do pretty well."

The 80 km race on September 5 featured a 16-km trail run, a 14-km kayak through Big Hole, Noname, Summit Pond, Sherborne, and St. Nora Lakes as well as a 50-km mountain bike ride.

Van Dorp is an accomplished runner and kayaker but mountain biking? Well, that's another story.

"I've done a lot of running and I've done a lot of kayaking but I've only done a little bit of mountain biking, so I was uncertain as to how it was going to go," said Van Dorp.

So his race strategy was simple.

"I knew if I was going to have any chance at it, I'd have to do very well in the run and in the paddle and build up a bit of a lead," said Van Dorp.

"I needed that so I could hang on in the mountain biking. I figured these people would be better at it than me because [mountainbiking] is what they do all the time."

The Wiarton native had a one-minute lead after the run which he finished in a time of 1:23.30. He added eight more minutes to that margin with a 1:27.00 time in the kayak.

Van Dorp finished the mountain biking in 2:37.00, which gave him a five-minute margin of victory. His overall time was 5:27.30.

He had the fifth-fastest mountain biking time.

The Speight's World Multisport Championship one-day race is set for February 13.

Competitors will race across the width of New Zealand's south island, beginning in Kumara and finishing in Christchurch.

The 243-km race runs in four stages – a three km run and a 55-km cycle; a 33-km run; a 15-km cycle and a 67-km kayak; and a 70-km cycle.

Van Dorp's mountain biking skills won't be an issue in New Zealand. The cycling sections are all on road courses which is something he's accustomed to.

"A lot of my cycling stuff has been on the road such as cycling across Canada and a lot of time trialing with the Owen Sound Cycling Club and a lot of triathlons," said Van Dorp.

But the kayaking will be another matter. He's not as familiar with white-water kayaking so that's something he'll be working on in the next five months.

"My comfort level with the white water in the kayaking is a bit of a question," said Van Dorp.

"I'll try to find some rough water and paddle in it for a long time."

He'll also be working toward landing some sponsors to help offset some of his expenses.

Airfare alone to New Zealand will likely cost him close to $2,000. And he's still got the cost of food and accommodations as well as setting up a support team to transport his equipment along the course.

"I need to find some ways to bring the costs down," said Van Dorp, who also plans to enter a few more multisport races this fall to convince equipment companies that he's a legitimate threat in this sport and is worth sponsoring.

"I need to do a few more races to make myself a bit more attractive to sponsors."

Anyone interested in sponsoring Van Dorp is asked to e-mail him at jakobvandorp@gmail.com.

Yoga is back for fall classes

DORSET NEWS

Melissa Alfano
705-766-0076

melalfano@hotmail.com

Katie's back! After a summer break, Katie Ross is back at the Dorset Recreation Centre for Monday evening yoga classes. The class is suitable for all levels and focuses on stretching and strengthening the core. Yoga class starts at 5:30 p.m. and goes until 7 p.m. The cost is $14 drop in or $60 for five classes.

The class requires four people to run, so please call the Recreation Centre (766-9968) or pop in to sign up if you intend to come.

Yoga is an ancient and evolving practice that originated in India and helps participants work toward optimal performance of physical, mental and spiritual selves. Yoga can be beneficial to everyone as it helps to promote health and well-being.

A class usually consists of sequences of poses designed to improve posture and align the body. Along with the physical postures, breathing practices work to open the body's channels, especially the spine, so that energy can flow freely.

A yoga session can be restorative and gentle; it can be invigorating or a bit of both. The key is to identify your personal needs and adapt the class accordingly. Katie will work with you to do this and will help you to achieve the right balance.

For more information on yoga classes or any of the programs taking place, contact the Recreation Centre at 766-9968.

Thank you to Allie Chisholm Smith for leading yoga classes at the centre for July and August. The group will miss you Allie!

Just little more than a month away, it's not too early to ensure your space at the upcoming and popular Thanksgiving dinner. Don't wait until it's too late!

Organizers are now selling tickets for the annual Thanksgiving Dinner at the Dorset Recreation Centre which takes place on Sunday, October 11. If you want to book tickets or would like more information, please call Donna Keul at 766-9253. There will be two sittings, one at 4:30 p.m. and one at 6:30 p.m. The cost is $13 for adults, $11 for seniors (60 and over) and $6 for children 12 and under.

Birthday wishes for the week of September 13 to 19 go out to Josh Morris, Emily Keown, Simon Douglass,

Where is the wearable art?

Artrageous fashion returns to the Art Hive on September 19 with this year's Fashion Fallies Wearable Art Event. Members of the Maple Lake Artisans' Collective and other local artists will be featuring fun and funky fashion art pieces on the runway in the unique setting of the Art Hive. Local performer Jerelyn Craden has taken on the role of MC this year and will be joined by other musical and dance artists.

Fashion Fallies is a unique wearable art experience, with its focus on multimedia art making it very different from any other fashion show in the county. It has become a highly anticipated annual event at the Art Hive with tickets selling out quickly. Previous year's innovative art to wear included items created from paper, porcupine quills, tin cans, duct tape, feathers, clay, building materials and recycled garments.

The Art Hive is the gallery/store, workshop, event and studio space of the Maple Lake Artisans' Collective. Presently there are 15 artist members, all of whom are local Haliburton County residents. The collective is a non-profit organization, with members taking turns staffing the gallery and providing community programming at The Art Hive. Fashion Fallies is an event that invites the community to both create and view unusual wearables in combination with performance art, and includes the opportunity to chat with the designers.

Janis Parker of Parker Pad and Printing is sponsoring the Peoples' Choice Awards for the second year. Last year's fabulous winning outfits were created from styrofoam packing materials, recycled window screen and peacock feathers. Attendees this year will once again have the opportunity to vote for their favourite wearable art piece while enjoying gourmet refreshments sponsored by Moon Shadows Estate Winery. The show starts at 7 p.m. Saturday, September 19. Tickets to this fabulous fun evening are available at The Art Hive, Rails End Gallery in Haliburton and Organic Times in Minden. Bikers go all-in for HHHSF

Poker ride raises $5,000 for ceiling lifts

by MATT JAMES
Times Staff

Motorcycle enthusiasts from Minden, Haliburton, Dunnville, Jarvis, Orillia, Hagersville, Nanticoke, Brechin, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Kirkfield and Norland donned their leathers and hopped on their bikes in support of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation's Reach For The Future Campaign on Saturday.

Departing from the Minden Hills Community Centre, about 50 bikers and their passengers enjoyed a marvellous day on the road, riding a 235-kilometre loop that took them through parts of Peterborough and Haliburton counties.

Stopping at five checkpoints throughout the day, Scott Gartshore eventually picked up the winning poker hand with four of a kind.

The event was hosted by the Minden Lions Club in support of HHHSF. Thanks to a number of local businesses and organizations, 13 significant prizes were made available.

Klara Oyler was the top fundraiser bringing in $1,225. Jerry Walker and Bob Mann brought in $1,140 and $460 respectively.

After a famous Minden Lions Club spaghetti dinner the riders rocked to the sounds of Gord Kidd and the 50/50 Band.

Jerry Walker, husband of HHHSF executive director Dale Walker, loves riding, especially if it's for a good cause.
